

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides vascular insertion sheaths and other tools having penetration locators. The insertion sheaths or other tools also have a switch for controlling fluid flow therethrough. The switch may be a valve or a closed indication chamber that reduces or eliminates blood loss to atmosphere while still providing a visual indication of lumen penetration.